Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 12 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Very windy, with patchy rain overnight.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry with clear spells this evening, but cloud and patchy rain will spread in from the west towards midnight. It will also be very windy, particularly over high ground. Cloud, rain, and strong winds clearing later in the night. Minimum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Monday:
Mostly dry, with bright or sunny spells, especially toward the north. However, cloud will increase across southern parts later in the afternoon, possibly bringing the odd spot of rain. Maximum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Rather cloudy and windy on Tuesday and Wednesday, with some patchy rain, most likely across the Pennines and Cheviot Hills. Drier and less windy Thursday, but largely cloudy. Very mild.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.